Innovation & Luxury on the World's Timeless Rivers

The world's waterways have historically been conduits of culture. Today, they're the domain of AmaWaterways, whose award-winning fleet of five-star "floating boutique hotels" is redefining luxury cruising—from the Mosel to the Mekong and beyond.

AmaWaterways President Rudi Schreiner launched the concept of modern European river cruising in 1992 and has been an innovator ever since. Schreiner, a trained architect, has considered every aspect of his ships' elegant design: spacious cabins averaging 220 square feet, versus the industry standard of 150 square feet; and amenities like the high-tech infotainment system. Double balconies in most staterooms let you watch spectacular scenery unfold—not only from the comfort of your cabin, but from your bed.

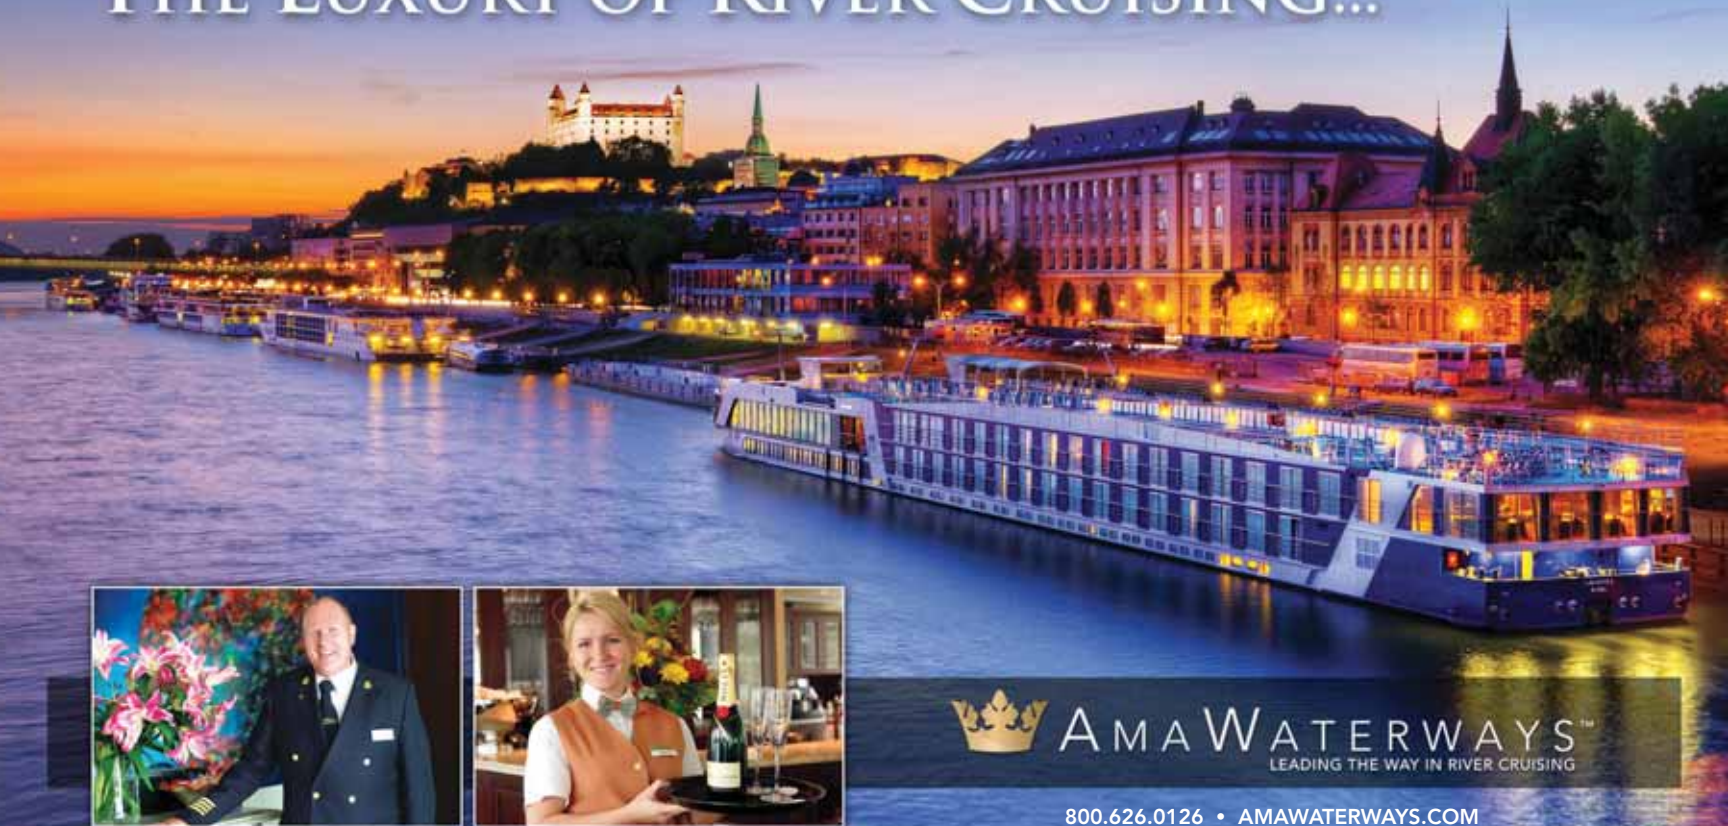

AmaWaterways also prides itself on being the only river cruise line invited to join the prestigious Chaîne des Rôtisseurs food and wine society. Its regional gourmet cuisine is paired with free-flowing wine and beer at dinner, and served in a choice of indoor and outdoor venues. Included guided excursions meet every interest and level of pacing: late-riser tours, tasting tours, and even bicycle tours.

AmaWaterways ships accommodate up to 148 to 164 guests, creating an exclusive yet intimate atmosphere for individuals, groups and private charters. Its 30-plus all-inclusive itineraries and themed departures span Europe, Russia, Vietnam, Cambodia and Africa. Exciting new itineraries on the Douro River in Portugal and the Seine River in France have been added for 2013 as well.
